Police investigate shooting at Haskett home

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

Didsbury RCMP are investigating a shooting at the home of Didsbury resident Daniel Charles Haskett Aug. 16.

Police say the shot came through the residence's living room window between 10 and 11 p.m.

Presently, Haskett, is awaiting sentencing for an animal cruelty conviction involving family pet Daisy Duke.

Daniel and his mother Angela were home at the time of the shooting.

Both were in a room on the main floor of their residence, when Daniel left to take a shower.

"That's when we heard something break," said Angela.

"I just assumed he knocked something over."

But when she found that nothing was knocked over, out of concern Angela contacted the RCMP.

"It turned out someone shot a bullet through our living room window," said Angela, becoming emotional.

Angela says she has been living somewhere else since the shooting.

"I don't sleep," she said. "I have been working at my job for 11 years and I don't want to leave Didsbury."

Angela says she isn't sure if she'll have to move.

"I don't want to move, this is my home. I think for the most part I have enough support to stay," she said.

"But when it's putting people's lives in danger over something like this, what do you do?"

She says many questions have gone through her mind since the shooting.

"I wonder what if it hit me? What could happen next?"

Angela says it is difficult deciding where she and her family can go from here.

"I'm just so sick of it all. I want it all to stop," she said.

"He made a mistake and he wants to deal with it."

Police are investigating mischief endangering life said Didsbury RCMP Cst. Robert Newton.

"In this situation with the people inside the house, their lives were in immediate danger. This is being taken very seriously," said Newton.

"The RCMP does not support any sort of vigilantism."

The Red Deer forensic unit is examining the bullet.

Newton says, the RCMP requests the public's assistance for information in the shooting.

Renters face tight market

BY KIM DICK
For the Review

Renters in Central Alberta may still find themselves in a bleak situation when looking for viable, affordable housing options.

With the housing crisis still looming in most Central Alberta communities, people moving to the area are having a hard time finding appropriate housing to suit their needs.

In 2006, a 34 per cent increase in the cost of housing put the squeeze on potential residential buyers in our area with very little choice in the starter home market.

This year, there is still very little choice for first time buyers to get into the market, which may be contributing to an already tight rental situation.

Corrie McGibney, executive director at Olds Neighborhood Place (ONP), says there is a lack of affordable housing for many moving to Central Alberta.

"On two levels there is a lack of affordable rental accommodations and a lack of entry-level homes for purchase," said McGibney. "We are dealing with people who are looking more for rental properties. People who are locating to Olds for a number of reasons, who can't find anywhere to live."

Many of the people who look to ONP assistance have jobs lined up, kids and pets in tow and are stuck living in less than desirable spaces, said McGibney.

"These are people who are coming financially equipped and have nowhere to go," said McGibney. "This has not changed, people are still referring people here like we have a magic solution, and we don't."

Staff at ONP can advise people on how and where to look for viable housing options, but are restricted to the same avenues as everybody else.

"We do the same things everybody else does," said

LANDMARK - The annual parade drew a large crowd to celebrate Didsbury's champions like Rick Wannamaker, the parade marshall, and some of its landmarks like the Didsbury Museum celebrating 100 years.

McGibney. "We look in the paper, we look on the college website on the housing registry, we advise people to drive up and down the street looking for rent signs...we provide a shoulder and an ear and we hear a lot of stories, and it's not uncommon to have people in tears."

Bowden resident and town councillor Shirley Adams has also been concerned over the lack of affordable housing options in the region.

"There is such a shortage of accommodations it's starting to affect so many more people," said Adams. "It's starting to affect the students who were already having trouble finding places to live, now they are competing with every other worker that has come to town for employment."

Adams, owner of the local Reddi Mart in Bowden, says it is not uncommon for people to drop into the store to look for housing.

"Every day or every second day there is somebody coming in looking for places to live," said Adams.

As fall semester at Olds College starts up and students begin to flood the existing tight market, the rental situation in Olds may get even more strained.

Unrealistic expectations cools housing market: realtors

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

As Mel Crothers of Didsbury Royal LePage flips through his binder of listings, one word stands out above the rest: reduction.

Following a year that saw housing market prices reach an all-time high in Didsbury, Crothers and other town realtors are noticing a change this year.

The reductions seem to have come from unrealistic expectations, said Crothers.

"I think there was an expectation early this spring that it would continue on from last year," he said. "The economy has flattened out a bit."

"Last year's was a seller's market because there wasn't enough on the market, and now there is way too much."

Rural July sales decreased compared to July 2006

Five hundred and thirty six properties were sold in central Alberta in July through the Multiple Listing Service, bringing the year-to-date total to 4,057, a 7 per cent increase compared to 2006 year-to-date number of 3,792 sales.

Sales in July 2007 were 18 per cent lower than sales recorded in June 2007.

In the rural towns and communities throughout central Alberta 267 homes sold last month; a 12.75 per cent decrease compared to last July when 306 homes sold, and a decrease of 15.5 per cent compared to June when 507 homes were sold. 2007 year-to-date figures show that 1,947 homes have sold this year, a 5 per cent decrease compared to the first seven

Crothers says he has seen houses in a $350,000 to $400,000 range that have dropped over $50,000 since they were first listed.

James Carpenter of CIR Realtors in Didsbury agrees.

"As fast as it came on the hot market, the tabs turned the other way," said Carpenter, who has also seen a high number of price reductions, specifically in June.

Carpenter says it's nice to see the change.

"It was not normal what happened last year. Nor is it something that you want to have happen too often. Either way, someone is always winning and someone is always losing."

"We're happy things are starting to turn to normal."

But with the reverse in market benefit, people planting "for sale" signs need to change their approach.

"The buyer is in the driver's seat, not the seller anymore. People have to be conscious of that when they price their new home," said Carpenter.

Crothers says sellers need to be realistic.

"Most realtors will come in and say, 'looking at what's going on, if you want to move it in the next 30 to 40 days, this is the price we recommend,'" he said.

"The realtors know...If we think it's going to be sold for $330,000, we're probably going to be within $5,000."

Carpenter says the housing market in Canada often reflects developments in the United States.

"We are noticing that banks are reluctant to lend, because in the U.S. they're doing a lot of zero per cent mortgages and high ratio mortgages and they got in trouble with that because there was no money left when the market turned," he said.

"We've had a lot of that happen over the past year and a half, so in a lot of ways we're in the similar situation except our economy is doing a lot better with the oil and gas."

Carpenter says various banks have been caught in the U.S. housing crunch, which now affects how people receive financing.

"I've even had one bank turn down a client saying they were nervous about the market and it was more of an investment-type purchase versus a residential dwelling for themselves," he said.

"The market has been spurred by a lot of investors and if they can't get money it will slow the market. You've just taken one of the buyers off the table."

Opinion

Commentary Cellphones shouldn't be singled out

JOSH SKAPIN

Last week Premier Ed Stelmach announced his intention to deliver monster-sized penalties to people using a cellphone while operating a vehicle. His contention is that it would lower the rate of collisions in the province.

While it's nice to see Stelmach taking steps to clean up the number of unnecessary crashes, their target is much too narrow.

One portion of their argument against cellphones is the element of distraction.

Last time I looked, having a conversation with someone in the passenger seat can be just as attention grabbing if not more so.

At least with a cell phone, the driver doesn't have the urge to look to their right.

The first time I was in a collision I was rear-ended by a woman who was tending to her child in the passenger seat. She didn't notice the light was red.

I'm guessing if she was on a cellphone, she would have kept her eyes on the road and realized the vehicles in front of her were parked at an intersection. Some say cell phones, without the hands-free feature, prevent drivers from keeping both hands on the steering wheel. Maybe the police should hand out fines to people who grip the steering wheel with one hand and a double whopper with the other. Choking down dribbling, food on the go doesn't attract attention from the authorities, but holding a small communication device does.

What about the operation of an automobile while viewing a full-length feature film?

That's far from uncommon with the popular add-on of DVD players in vehicles. What strikes you as being more distracting, calling your wife to see if she wants you to pick up anything on your way home, or watching an episode of Seinfeld?

According to a study done by allaboutcars.com cellphones aren't the chart-topping factor for collisions. They say, applying cosmetics while operating a vehicle is the number one culprit. Someone gazing in their rear-view mirror while fixing their lipstick sounds and is absolutely deadly – but Stelmach has his sights set on those darn cellphones. That said, if it'll save lives, I would be happy to switch off my phone while the car is in motion. Mom would be more than happy to say hello to voicemail.

WHEN WHAT'S FAIR FOR ONE ISN'T FAIR FOR ALL...

Letter to the editor Fair and rodeo taught patience

I attended the Didsbury Rodeo last weekend for the first time and had quite a good time. Rodeo is one of my passions. If you're going to get up on one of those critters I'm going to watch. The one thing I was surprised at was there were only two food places. Then I was listening to a conversation and found out there were supposed to be more, however they did not show. Boy that is commitment.

The point to this letter is the two that were there really had their hands full. From what I could see they were trying their hardest. It took quite a while to get your food, but what do you expect trying to serve that many people? Also, from what I understand speaking to one lady, this was their first try at this. I don't think there is anyone out there that has not had a first time at some job. So my thought is criticize those who did not turn up, not those who were trying their best to serve us. We all need to learn more patience in life.

More responsible town administration needed

Town of Didsbury residents - have you noticed your water bill lately? A household water/sewer bill has increased about $19 this month.

As stated in the Town Crier of Spring 2007, the water and sewer related charges were going to change. On this month's bill here is what you will see.

An administration fee of $6, an Infrastructure Renewal Base for sewer of $3, and your sewer charges which should be 43.5 per cent in the summer and 56.5 per cent in the winter of your water usage amount and then your garbage fee.

As I sit here trying to make sense of my water/sewer bill I find that the fee for my Sewer Services is not 43 per cent of my water usage. My water usage amount is $15.07 and my sewer service rate is $11.83. This is neither 85 per cent, 43.5 per cent, or 56.5 per cent of my water usage. Last time I looked it is summer, so my Sewer Services should be $6.55. The Town of Didsbury council and administration are always able to find the cash for fixing their problems or problems of the past, yet they do not try to find solutions. For instance, the toilet rebate that was offered in Olds where residents brought in their old toilet, bought a new low flow and dual flush and received a $50 to $100 rebate for helping control the water in their household. What a brilliant idea. The Town of Olds ran out of grant money because it was so popular and hopes to do it again next year. Oh, and by the way the toilets are being stored right now, they were not put into the landfill.

The Town Crier article also quotes a statement from the American Water Works Association. Last time I checked, we are still in a small town in Canada.

We need a responsible administration. Would it not be nice if we could vote for the administration every three years

Colts building team for 2007/08 season

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

For the Mountain View Colts, September can't come soon enough.

While the Heritage Junior B Hockey League season is over a month away, the organization is hungry to build a team they hope will contend for the league crown.

They'll start piecing together this season's roster during their annual open camp at the Carstairs area Sept. 7-9.

Colts coach Cliff Murphy says approximately 90 per cent of this year's team will participate in the camp.

Those who make the camp will have to show Murphy a few things.

"I want to see kids that want to be there and play," he said. "It's a pretty high calibre level of hockey and it isn't easy. This requires a commitment and a desire to be there."

"Our team has been pretty successful over the last couple of years and we not only want to keep it that way, but take a run at the league championship."

Murphy says the identity of Colts hockey is plenty of speed and a commitment to the details of the game that result in success.

According to Murphy, it would be ideal to create a team similar to last season's Colts.

"If we had a team like last year's team...that's pretty hard to beat. We just had injuries at the wrong time."

Last season the Colts finished second in the Central Division with a record of 24-9-2-1.

Their regular season goals against total of 114 was second best in the league.

Five players from last year's squad will be trying their luck at Junior A camps this fall.

"Hopefully for their sake, we don't see them again. But if they do come back we could have 15 or 16 guys returning."

With a host of local minor hockey graduates expected to attend camp, Murphy says he thinks the Colts have a bright future.

"The Didsbury Midget team won their league and Sundre won their league. We have kids coming to camp from both those (programs.) They've won before. Guys who have won league championships, no matter what level, it helps you," said Murphy.

Fair and rodeo deemed a success

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

Organizers for this year's Didsbury Fair and Rodeo say their weekend-long event was a success.

"Things were really good," said Raylene Papke of the Didsbury Agricultural Society.

"Everything seemed to come together really well."

The Thunder on the Prairies' fireworks presentation, a highlight for many, was another impressive spectacle.

"When I walked through the crowd all I could hear were compliments on how wonderful they were," said Papke.

"She described the display as being nearly 25 minutes of fantastic colour."

To bring Thunder on the Prairies back next year, Papke says it's important that people make donations.

"Donations are the only way that we can become bigger and better," she said.

Papke said crowds were strong for the fireworks and all performances including an FCA rodeo, 4-H Rodeo, and antique tractor pull.

While she didn't have attendance numbers or box office earnings, Papke says she thinks the turnout was similar to last year's fair and rodeo.

Saturday morning the Elks continued a long-standing tradition of serving pancakes and sausages in exchange for an optional donation.

This year the service group raised over $1,000 at the breakfast.

Funds will be placed in an account and later donated to a children's charity.

"It was a great turnout," said Shaun Waite of the Didsbury Elks.

After the breakfast the Elks had no time to rest, hosting their annual parade with this year's theme being "salute to champions."

Streets were lined with Didsbury residents participating in the viewing of clowns and dazzling floats.

"The parade was a great success," said Waite.

Didsbury reminds new constable of home

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

As a young boy living on a farm a short distance outside Regina Saskatchewan, Kent Shaw enjoyed participating in many different games with friends, including cops and robbers.

Even back then, Shaw, now an RCMP Constable and the newest addition to the Didsbury detachment, preferred to play the role of police.

"That interest was always there," he said. "Even through high school that dream never died."

Originally aiming for a degree in police work, Shaw found his application for work with the RCMP was accepted and soon he began six months of training at Depot in Regina.

Shaw had a grasp of what Depot would be like, having previously volunteered at the base as a member of the cadets.

But what he didn't bargain for was the bonding that came from his experience.

"I thought you'd be close to a few people, but the entire group atmosphere that you have is pretty amazing," he said.

"It's 27 people working towards a common goal."

Now, with about three weeks of duty in Didsbury under his belt, Shaw, 23, has reached his career goal and is looking forward to making the difference that first attracted him to the line of work.

But unlike the structured regime at Depot, Shaw's days have been unpredictable as an RCMP officer.

"You could have a slow night and then three, four, five calls in a row and you're going out all over," he said. "It has been busy."

Shaw played a role in an outdoor marijuana grow operation bust near Cremona two weeks ago.

"It felt really good working to do something to clean up the area," he said.

"It was exciting, but it was scary at the same time, because you don't know what you're getting into."

But Shaw says Didsbury and the surrounding communities that the detachment services have provided him with a positive experience.

"It reminds me a lot of home," he said.

"It's nice because people come up to me and feel comfortable saying hello. I invite that."

The approach towards police officers has been a pleasant surprise for Shaw.

"I thought when people saw the police that they would be a bit more hesitant around me," he said.

"But it has been a nice surprise that they have felt comfortable coming up and speaking with me or saying hello when they see me driving down the road."

ROYAL APPROVAL - Carstairs royalty, Queen Courtney Keys and Princess Koki-Lynn Williams share a laugh as they try to decide what this carrot looks like. The carrot was entered in the unusual vegetables category at the Lone Pine Bench Fair, Wednesday. "It's a half man carrot," said Keys. But according to Adelard Grzela, who grew it, it looks like a pig's foot.

A family affair

Lone Pine Bench Fair attracts winners

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

Strolling through the annual Lone Pine Bench fair and looking to see who entered what, one name stood out above the rest - Boody.

The family name appeared on more than a few of the entered items.

And it's not what you may think. It wasn't 20 or 30 entrees. Not even fifty.

The Bodys, as a family of six, submitted 205.

"I didn't realize there was that much," laughed Denise, who joined forces with her husband Paul and children Christina, David, JoAnna, and Kyle.

Denise says their involvement in the fair came from the chance to participate in common interests.

"I love gardening and baking and I guess I passed that down to my kids," she said.

"It's fun to go and compete and for the kids it's nice to have a little bit of extra spending money."

Denise says the bench fair is a positive experience for children.

"I have really noticed that it brings out their creativity."

Kyle, who picked up ribbons in categories like woodworking and photography says he looks forward to the fair every year.

"I really enjoy it," he said with a chuckle. "I like the money."

Denise's largest collection of ribbons comes from her pies and tomatoes.

ON A ROLL - Diane Grzela (pictured above) and her husband Adelard are on a roll this year at the Lone Pine Bench Fair winning many ribbons in numerous categories but specifically for Diane's jelly roll and Adelard's unusual looking carrot.

"I love gardening and baking and I guess I passed that down to my kids," she said.

"They are a work of miracles. I hated making pies," laughed Denise.

"I only did it because a lot of the grand prizes were for pies, so that's why I started."

But she changed her crust recipe, which she says once resembled a patchwork quilt, and now gets higher praise from the judges.

The family has been making submissions to the bench fair over the past four years.

GUESSING GAME - Russel Rachak takes his time making an educated guess on how many jelly beans are in the jar. Rachak guessed 100 jelly beans hoping to win the sweet door prize.

Concrete

THERE'S NO ALTERNATIVE TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages.

It's a proven performer. Rugged. Tough. Durable. A concrete basement will never burn or rot.

And concrete is safe. Quality controlled, concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

Concrete is an energy-wise choice. A concrete basement needs little heat or airconditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality.

In memory of our Cowboy, Dale Flett

July 7, 1924 - July 29, 2003

It has been four long years since you took that last ride. Not a day goes by that we don't think of you and wish that we could have at least one more ride with you.

We miss your smile, your laugh, your twinkling blue eyes, your humour - we just miss you!!!

We love you and wish you were here.

Love,

Jean, Gail, Bev, Joy,
Carolyn & families

In memory of Neil Rigsby November 8, 1924 - August 25, 2005

We did not know that morning
What sorrows it would bring.
The bitter grief of shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
You bid not one a last farewell,
Nor even said good-bye.
For you were gone before we knew,
And only God knows why.
What we would give to you today,
To see your face and see your smile,
To sit and talk to you a while.
But we have lost and God has gained,
The best man we ever knew our Husband, Father, Grandfather, Great-grandfather.

Always loved, Isabelle
